Commodore of the New York Yacht Club.

JAMES GORDON BENNETT.
James Gordon Bennett necessarily inherited vast wealth, his father having been an editor. He appeared first as a single sheet extra, double headed piece, and of pink complexion, and there was only one of him issued; price, two cents. Upon reaching his majority, little Jimmie, as he was then called, was suddenly summoned to executive control of the entire estate. Being of frugal disposition he carefully deposited the revenues accruing each month in banks, fast horses and other securities. He likewise reorganized the staff of the periodical he inherited. A corps of foreign correspondents was likewise organized by him in this city, and they daily send cablegrams of column length from the city editor's room to the office of the managing editor, giving the particulars of interviews with crowned heads all over Europe, Asia and Hawaii. His explorations in Central Africa, by deputy, and his investigations of the North Pole, by able substitutes, have given him a reputation for daring which is peerless. In naval architecture, however, he won most fame. His last yacht was really the work of his own hands, for while a few deserving artisans drew her lines and hammered her planks together, he did the rest himself, drawing his cheek unaided. He was likewise celebrated for a duel fought in two states simultaneously. He being a New Jersey and his opponent in Maryland while the fatal shots were exchanged. His recent speech at the banquet tendered him by the New York Yacht Club is remarkable for the intense and almost appalling silence of which it was composed. The attention he gives to the management of his paper by a persistent absence has not its parallel anywhere.

Brother Gardner's Political Advice.

"I should like to speak a few words out loud to Pickles Smith, Whalabone Howker, Judge Standoff and 'Rise Up Perkins,'" said Brother Gardner as he opened the meeting of the Linn Kila club, "and de subra pua named w'il please step to de front."
The members mentioned advanced in a sheepish, hesitating manner, and when grouped before the president's desk he continued:
"Each one of you am well aware o' de fact dat dis club has finally declined to commit itself to any political party. You fo' members has seen fit to disregard my advice. I understand dat you am on de whoop."
"Gentlen, let me spoke to you. De constitution am a werry sacred document, but you kin buy mo' groceries wid a $3 bill."
"De Magna Charta which every candidate for constable talks about should inspire each one of you wid reverence, but less reverence fur de Magna an' mo' shoes fur de children will increase your standin' among yer neighbors."
"De bulwarks of liberty, about which we hear so much, mus' be defended eben wid our lives, but when a man's goods am dumped out on de sidewalk kase he can't pay his rent de bulwarks o' liberty am party thin."
"Fifteen-cent orators git up and wave deir arms around an' talk to you of de principles of Monroe, an' Jefferson, an' Adams, an' Lincoln. Principles, gentlen, am all right under sartin circumstances, but when swallowed wid weak codfish an' cold 'taters dey don't put no fat on yer ribs."
"De grand old principles of grand old parties am buried at your heads from every corner, but dey won't pay rent nor buy soap bones."

A Warning to Smokers.

The anti-tobaccoists find a strong argument in a curious fact that has just been made public in relation to the Greely Arctic expedition. According to Lieut. Greely's account of the nineteen men who perished all but one were smokers, and the one was the last to die. The seven survivors were non-smoking men. Perhaps when the tobacco ran out the smokers died of broken hearts.

The Difference.

Dialogue between two men about town:
"What is the difference between a stock exchange and a bucket-shop?"
"I'll explain it to you. When a fellow wins, he says: 'I've made money on the stock exchange'; when he loses, he remarks: 'I've been robbed in a bucket-shop.' That's the difference."
